

PROGRAM

May 2 - 4, 2013 ECTS MA Annual Meeting Università degli Studi di Pavia

From Thursday evening to Saturday noon

The University of Pavia is one of the oldest universities in Europe. An edict issued by Lothar I, king of Italy (818-55), mentions the existence of a higher education institution at Pavia. Throughout its history, the University of Pavia has benefited from the presence of many scientists who made important discoveries: the mathematician G Cardano, the physicist A Volta, the physicians A Scarpa, A Corti and C Golgi, the Nobel Laureate. The University maintains a centenary policy of international openness and sends and receives many students and researchers from around the world. The university fulfills its role as a bridge between past and future, between teachers and students with enthusiasm and energy.

The ECTS MA board and the Organizing Committee in Pavia are proud to invite you to Pavia to the next ECTS MA Annual Meeting
